I. INTRODUCTION

While the Academy for Jewish Religion embraces multiple approaches to Jewish ritual and practice, we believe that effective spiritual leaders must be exposed to, and gain a degree of competence in, the full range of traditional rituals and melodies that are used in different forms across the Jewish spectrum. Ritual Skills testing is meant to examine students' basic facility with the core rituals and melodies that Jewish clergy may be called upon to perform in various settings, regardless of students' own personal and professional religious preferences. These Ritual Skills include the ability to competently perform certain ritual recitations and actions, to be familiar with guiding others in certain life-cycle and religious activities and prayers, and to adequately discharge certain functions commonly held to be the responsibility of clergy. Perfection is certainly not expected; adequacy and competence are.

Since cantorial and Kol-Bo students study and are tested on cantillation and nusah as a matter of course in their classes and in comprehensive exams, they are only required to be tested on a more limited set of Ritual Skills. This applies also to ordained/invested cantors who are students in the "Cantors to Rabbis" track of the Rabbinical Program. Each requirement in this document is specifically labelled as applying to either rabbinical students (not including Cantors to Rabbis students) or to rabbinical, cantorial, Kol-Bo, and Cantors to Rabbis (abbreviated C2R) students.

II. LITURGIES AND NUSHAOT

AJR recognizes that there is a wide variety of liturgies used within the Jewish world and there is also a wide range of creative melodies employed for different portions of the liturgy. Even with all of this variation, facility with the standard Ashkenazi nusah is still an essential skill for Jewish clergy who work in the United States and Canada (where the majority of our students are currently located). In order to ensure that rabbinical students graduate with competency in basic nusah, while embracing the diversity of liturgies used across the Jewish world, for the nusah components of the Ritual Skills requirement, students may use any siddur/mahzor that contains a version of the specific liturgy they are testing sufficient to demonstrate mastery of the basic nusah for that part of the liturgy. For example, students may test Shabbat Shacharit nusah in Reform, Orthodox, Reconstructing Judaism, Conservative, etc. siddurim, but for Shabbat Musaf students will need to use a siddur that contains a version of the Musaf service sufficient to demonstrate competency in the nusah of this service (which is not included in the Reconstructing Judaism or Reform siddurim). The Ritual Skills Resources document (available in the Ritual Skills group in Populi – if you need access to this group, please email mgoldstone@ajr.edu) includes, for each nusah skill, page numbers for a variety of siddurim/mahzorim that include a version of the particular liturgy that is sufficient for demonstrating competency in that nusah. If you have a siddur/mahzor that you are interested in using, but which is not listed in the Ritual Skills Resources packet, please reach out to Cantor Michael Kasper (mkasper@ajr.edu).

AJR expects its rabbinical and cantorial students to show a level of prayer/davening proficiency commensurate with their chosen path toward ordination: rabbinical or cantorial. The question of whether to allow students to test these skills in either Ashkenazi or Sefaradi nusah has been raised and discussed at length. After consultation we have come to the decision that all students, regardless of heritage or personal preference, will test using the standard Ashkenazi system of nusah. The chief determinant in this decision is the fact that a singular Sefaradi nusah does not exist; every country or region relies on their own version of prayer chant and there is no single version that can be shown to be widely authoritative.

III. TESTING PROCEDURES

Ritual Skills testing is open to all AJR students who are matriculated into the Rabbinical or Cantorial Program. Students interested in testing should arrange with the interim Rabbi-in-Residence, Rabbi Rob Scheinberg (rscheinberg@ajr.edu). While AJR has a recommended timeline for completing Ritual Skills requirements (see below), students are encouraged to test skills with which they are comfortable early on in their time at AJR and students are welcome to test on the skills in any order. Students may test on a single skill or multiple skills within a single testing session.

Ritual Skills requirements for rabbinical students may be completed by passing one of AJR's cantillation or nusah courses, or by leading a prayer service at AJR that involves a sufficient amount of an approved version of the liturgy (students must confirm with the Rabbi-in-Residence in advance of leading a prayer service that they want to count as a Ritual Skills test).

IV. TEXTS AND MATERIALS

The Ritual Skills Resources document (available in the Ritual Skills Populi group – if you need access to this group, please email mgoldstone@ajr.edu) contains a list of approved siddurim, mahzorim, and other texts that students may use to test for Ritual Skills. This document also contains resources for learning to perform many of the required Ritual Skills.

With regard to cantillation Ritual Skills, students testing for regular (not High Holiday) Torah reading, as well as איבה שיר השירים\קהלת\רות, אסתר, הפטרה, will be tested by the instructors for sight-reading randomly-selected passages with trope on the vocalized side of the תיקון or תנ"ך. Students testing for regular Torah reading will also be tested on the "scroll side" of the תיקון, (the side without vocalization or trope) for the brief passages designated below.

V. RITUAL SKILLS TIMELINE

AJR highly encourages all students matriculated in the Cantorial or Rabbinical Program to begin learning and testing Ritual Skills early in their time at AJR. In order to support this practice, we have divided the Ritual Skills requirements into five units that generally reflect a common order in which students are asked to perform these skills in internships and in the Jewish community. Students can keep track of their progressing in passing Ritual Skills in their personal “Comps and Ritual Skills” spreadsheet in their Student tab in Populi. This document records all attempted Ritual Skills including the date that a student attempted the skill. A “2” indicates that the skill was passed; a “1” indicates that the skill was passed but the student is encouraged to keep working on this skill because their performance at the Ritual Skill testing was less than optimal; a “0” indicates that the skill was attempted but was not passed.

Unit Alef should be completed by the end of 14 credits.

Unit Bet should be completed by the end of 28 credits.

Unit Gimmel should be completed by the end of 42 credits.

Unit Dalet should be completed by the end of 56 credits.

Unit Heh should be completed by the end of the fall semester of the senior year.
